CICE 2006

Aim and Scope

Applications of fiber reinforced polymer (FRP) in civil engineering has increased significantly in recent years, both for the strengthening of existing structures and for new construction. The aim of this conference is to provide an international forum for all concerned with the application of FRP composites in civil engineering to exchange recent advances in both research and practice.

Contents

The three-day conference (December 13-15, 2006) will be filled with a variety of session formats, with a balance of technical advancement and practicality to permit the widest possible participation, including researchers and engineers. A number of world-renowned scholars will be invited to present keynote lectures. A con-current FRP product exhibition session will also be held. A pre-conference workshop on FRP repair applications and a post-conference cruise from Port of Miami are being planned.

Call for Papers

Authors are invited to submit a 250-word abstract in relevant topics together with Paper Submittal Form as soon as possible, but not later than the deadline stated above. Abstract should clearly indicate the purpose, approach, and findings of the work to be reported.

Paper Topics:

Papers describing various innovative and accelerated field repair applications utilizing traditional and new materials for concrete bridges are being solicited. The topics may include the use of fiber reinforced polymer (FRP) materials, innovative construction techniques, structural polymers, post tensioning rehabilitation, new products and construction system. Whenever possible, the authors are encouraged to include cost comparisons and life cycle analysis.
